SportsVision

HELPING YOU DELIVER MODERN SPORTS FACILITIES

Sports Vision was created specifically to help organisations like yours who may be at the early stages of planning for major development projects. Sports Vision provides a visual assessment of your site development options to enable informed consultation and to help determine the best way forward for your club or venue.

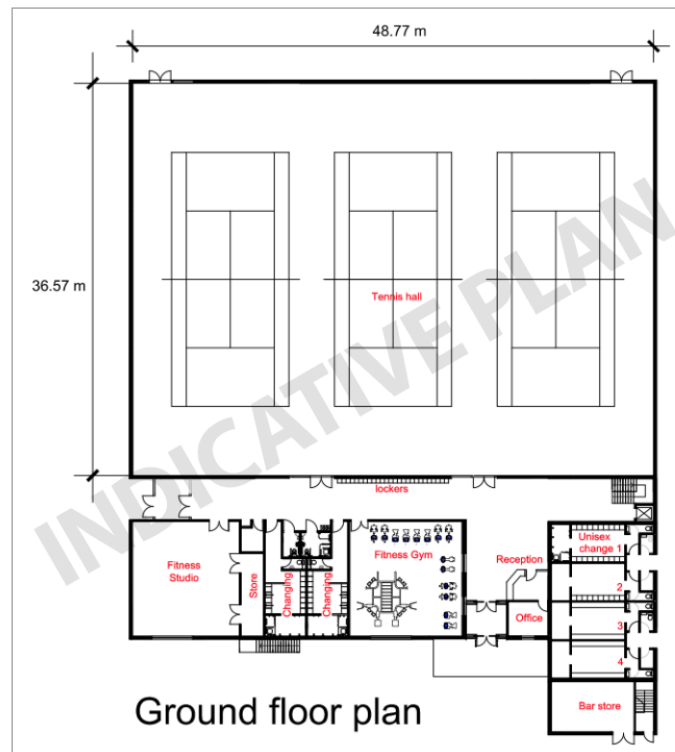

Sports Vision can benefit a wide range of projects including:

- Site re-organisation options.
- New sites and relocation projects.
- Development options for club mergers.
- New or replacement clubhouses and major extensions.
- Layout and design of new indoor and outdoor playing facilities.

Examples of recent studies undertaken by Sports Vision include:

- The merger and relocation of two tennis clubs and one bowls club to a new site.
- Development options for a new clubhouse and indoor tennis courts for a major tennis and hockey club.
- Site re-organisation and modernisation options for a multi-sports club.
- Upgrading sports and social facilities for village sports clubs on a single site.
- Masterplanning and feasibility study for layout and design of sports facilities and a community hub building.

For an affordable fee, our Sports Vision Site Development Study will enable you to undertake internal debate with your members and users on possible development solutions. It can assist you to enter into informed discussions with planning officers and provide the basis for your business plan, project brief and technical feasibility study. The Study incorporates development options and 'what if' scenarios, together with recommendations on a way forward following feedback on initial proposals.

Sports Vision is headed up by consultant sports architect Robin Wilson and sports consultant Phil Sandilands. Both have many years experience of advising on facility design and procurement across most sports.

Drawing upon our extensive experience working for a wide range of sports clubs, governing bodies of sport, sports funding agencies, local authorities and their planning departments, our professional team has developed a practical advice and guidance service specifically designed for the needs of sports venues.
